As The Editor Sees It

There's going to be a game here at Evergreen tonight at 8 p.m. Its' outcome will probably have an effect on who ends up on top of the heap in the Northern Division of the Mason-Dixon Conference. And a positive outcome for the Hounds would mean a successful season. And, if won, this could provide the spark of confidence to Loyola that would send the Hounds through the division playoffs and on to win the M-D Tourney.

Loyola is 3rd in the Northern Division of the conference with a 5 and 4 conference record. While their opponents are leading the division with a 5 and 1 conference record. Comparing Loyola's overall record with that of their opponents makes the situation appear more hopeless.

With these discouraging facts so overwhelming, what chance can the Hounds have in this game? What do the Hounds need to enable them to win this game? Will the school spirit, because they are playing at home, inspire them to win this game? Could the fact that Loyola might fall behind in the long traditional series between the two schools drive them to victory. All of these things will no doubt have some effect on the Hounds playing in this game but by no means will any of these things be the real deciding factor.

About our chances of winning coach Lefty Reitz says "We have as good a chance as they do and if we play like we did against A.U. except with our subs coming through, we can win." In the A.U. game the Hounds played somewhere near their potential as Mike Sneeringer led the way with his accurate shooting and Ed Murn did a great rebounding job. All the Hounds really need to win this game then is the confidence in themselves that will enable them to play as they are capable.

The Series To Date

Sure there are other traditional arch-rival battles among other colleges, but none ever so famous as the two feudin' tenants of the Mason-Dixon Conference, Loyola and Mt. St. Mary's. Whenever these two teams get together there's bound to be a hassle, and many a game of the series has been a big factor in whose name was atop the league standings at the end of the year.

Take 1954-1955 for instance The Hounds and Saints went into their tilt that year tied for the conference lead. The Green and Grey emerged victorious (82-76) and took over first place in the M.-D. race. The second tilt that year however went to the Mountaineers and along with it the league championship.

Last year as most Evergreeners recall, the Hounds lost two overtime thrillers.

Almost

The first game was won by the Saints after one regulation period. The second saw the Hounds come back from a 13-point deficit and almost won the game in regulation time. They blew their opportunity under the St. Mary's basket, however and Jim Phelen's crew went on to win that one in double-overtime, 84-80.

The first meeting of the two teams this year was not a typical example of a Loyola-Mount game. The hosts, behind the jump-shooting of Jerry Savage and the ball handling of Ed Pfeiffer ran away from the visiting Greyhounds before they could get a start. This game evened the 86 Game series between the two clubs at 43-43 and thus set the stage for tonight's tussle.

Heagney Leads

Junior John Heagney is atop the Hound scoring parade with 14.2, while Joe O'Hara follows closely with 13.5. Mike Sneeringer (11.0) and Ed Murn (9.6) are the other leaders in a well-balanced attack.

Here's How Hounds Will Break Tie

Stellar Performance Due

With hook shots by Joe O'Hara like this one against Belmont Abbey

And Ed Murn pulling down the rebounds in usual his fashion

Mike Sneeringer's accurate shooting and rebounding

John Heagney's driving and shooting

And Reserves like Phil Potter coming through for the Hounds

And a student body cheering the Hounds on to the victory that would Enable them to break the deadlock.
